

TXM TECHNOLOGY EUROPE

In 2015 TXM Technology Group opened its first regional division; TXM Technology Europe.

Steve Amos, one of the founding members of the TXM Technology Group, heads up the TXM Technology Europe division. With over 15 year's technology specific recruitment experience, Steve was given one task - to ensure the TXM solution that was developed, and set-up in the UK was mirrored for the European market.

TXM Technology Europe was created as a result of our client community directly approaching our team to support several key projects within the DACH regions. Two years later, the team has expanded to five highly experienced recruiters helping over 20 clients throughout Europe, as well as a number of unique roles outside of Europe.

Our team has worked extremely hard to build a highly engaged community of clients and candidates that share the TXM ethos within our set of technology niches across various industries

From working with clients both in the UK and in Europe, we make sure we use our tools and skills to target candidates and technologists from specific regions to create niche pools of talent and excellence.

It is important that when engaging with TXM Technology Europe that you have confidence that our team will source and deliver the required solution, adding certainty and stability to your business, team and overall goals.

We, therefore, have built an experienced team that has worked across European regions and can actively source talent in any country to solve any technology focused resourcing requirements you have.

We regularly have a variety of roles in Germany, France, Austria, Holland, Belgium, Spain, Denmark, Sweden and Ireland with jobs ranging from junior level right through to senior and executive appointments.

Our goal is to build year on year our niche community of clients and candidates that we work with. The next two years will be an exciting time for the TXM Technology Europe division as our next goal is to take the methodology we have worked hard to design and deliver since 2015, and duplicate it to establish TXM Technology America and TXM Technology Emirates.

But for now, we welcome all enquiries. We are looking to work with dynamic, open and engaging clients and candidates. It is our group call that the TXM Technology brand is built on delivering positive outcomes for all involved and adding value, expertise and stability in what can be a tricky landscape. Our bespoke and niche solutions will create a roadmap for all your future recruitment and resource needs.

So why not let us go The Xtra Mile for your company or your next career move? Contact us to find out more.